THE SECRET STRATEGY FOR TRUE FAT LOSS

Inside I expose the hidden driver of fat gain, why you can't give up junk food, and an unknown strategy that will help you achieve lasting fat loss.

WHAT ACTUALLY CAUSES FAT GAIN

It's not calories, it's not laziness, and it's definitely not bad genes. It's toxins...

In the past, we stored body fat as an energy reserve, but these mechanisms have changed. Now, we mostly use body fat to safely store toxins away from vital tissues. There's lots of evidence to support this, some of which I've explored here.

Today, the key to healthy and sustainable fat loss isn't a just caloric deficit, it's to put your body in a position where it doesn't need to use this protective mechanism and store fat. You do this by lowering your toxin burden and optimizing your detox pathways (liver, bowels, and sweat). Food plays a role, but it's not how much you eat, it's what you eat.

DANGERS OF GLP-1'S

Semiglutides (Ozempic, Wegovy, ect) are a hot topic. Everyone wants to take one. The truth is, these drugs work by poisoning your digestive system which destroys your appetite and digestion. The side effects of these drugs are horrific, and include (but are not limited to) pancreatitis, medullary thyroid cancer, acute (sudden) kidney injury, and worsening diabetes-related retinopathy. I encourage you to stay far away from them and any other pharmaceutical weight loss drugs. With these tips below, you won't need them.

WE ARE PROGRAMMED TO BE FAT & SICK

If you've tried to lose weight, but just keep failing, you're not alone. Nearly 3/4 of the population is overweight and the reason is very simple—we are programmed to be fat. Your subconscious is programmed to pursue unhealthy behavior automatically, so no matter how strong your motivations, you can't change. They do this in a number of ways, but one of the primary methods is through repetition.

Humans are pack animals, we feel safe in groups. Our subconscious mind is hardwired to mimic the most repetitive content in our environment because it represents what the herd is doing. The problem is, our repetitive content is self destructive. Every input—news, entertainment, advertising, city streets, social media, and all the rest—is full of self-sabotaging behavior, especially health-harming behavior.

When your conscious goals don't align with your subconscious programming, you can't change. The subconscious always wins. That's the part of you that runs the show. The first step in any weight loss journey should be to reprogram your subconscious mind. The great thing is, once you reprogram it, healthy living becomes automatic. You can find lots of information online about how to do this, but this documentary is a good place to start.

ESCAPING PAIN WITH FOOD ADDICTION

Sugar rich ultra-processed food is one of the most addictive things in our environment. Though like all addictive behaviors, junk food doesn't actually cause addiction. It's simply used to escape from or numb some form of suffering. Dr. Gabor Mate, an expert in addiction and trauma, explains very clearly how addiction always follows pain. When trying to overcome addiction, he says "don't ask why the addiction, ask why the pain."

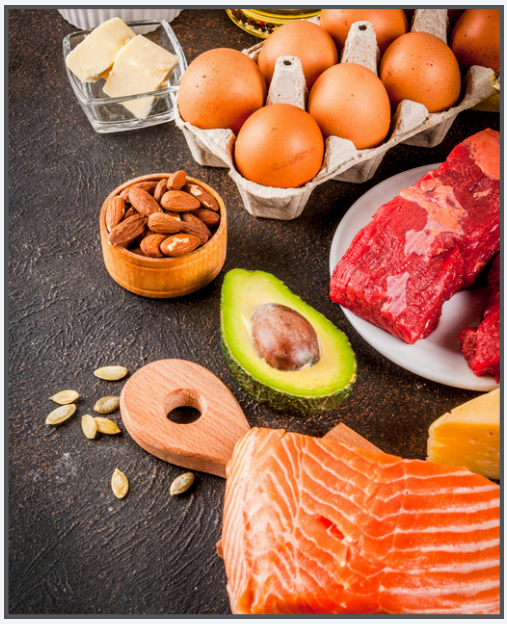

People binge on junk to suppress their pain, which results in weight gain. Without addressing the underlying pain it's very difficult to quit the addiction (or you'll substitute it for a different self sabotaging behavior).

These concepts of subconscious programming and escaping pain are hardly discussed in food addiction and weight loss, but they're crucial to understand. They can be difficult to overcome, but once you heal your trauma and take your subconscious back, you can improve your life in any aspect you desire.

LOW CARB/KETOGENIC DIET

Eating a low carb or ketogenic diet can turn your body into a fat burning machine. When we cut carbs out of the diet, instead of using glucose for energy our bodies use fatty acids from dietary fat and body fat.

There is no shortage of people online raving about their weight loss results on a low carb diet. Something to be wary of is the "keto flu", which is various flu like symptoms that people experience when starting a low carb diet. It's widely misunderstood though, these symptoms are actually just a cleansing reaction from the redistribution of toxins released from fat tissue. This is a sign the diet is working, but can be uncomfortable. There are tips below that can help mitigate this.

Some may struggle to burn fat on a ketogenic diet at first. If the existing toxin burden is too high or more toxins keep coming in, the body will either very slowly break fat down or will resist altogether. This is exactly what happened to me. This is where the secret strategy #3 comes in.

FASTING

Time-restricted eating (intermittent fasting) and multi-day fasts are two very well known approaches to weight loss. When you don't eat the body begins to break down fat (and also muscle) for energy.

Fasting, especially for 5 or more days, can lead to significant losses in body weight.

The problem is, it's difficult. Overcoming food addiction can be challenging. Also, rapid fat loss can redistribute toxins around the body and cause uncomfortable symptoms. This strategy takes willpower and sometimes professional supervision.

DETOXIFICATION & LIVER CLEANSING (THE UNKNOWN STRATEGY)

This is the KEY to healthy and sustainable weight loss and exactly how I finally burnt off my stubborn fat. It's very straightforward. Remove the stored toxins and lower the incoming toxin burden, then the body no longer has a need for fat tissue.

The toxins you want to target are lipophilic (fat loving) chemicals. These are the persistent organic pollutants (POPs) like pesticides, DDT, PCBs, PFAS, dioxins, ect. We tend to store these in fat because the body has a hard time eliminating them on its own. Fortunately, there are certain strategies that make them easier for the body to handle and get rid of.

The best way to directly target these toxins is to use natural lipophiles (oil solvents)—things like ghee, turpentine, DMSO, frankincense oil, and other essential oils. Ensure the highest quality. Also, just general detox (enemas, fasting, cleansing diet), liver cleansing, and better nutrition can help your body eliminate these toxins.

CLEANSING REACTIONS

When fat tissue is broken rapidly, and the body cannot eliminate the released toxins fast enough, they migrate to other tissues and cause temporary symptoms. This is known as a cleansing reaction. These symptoms consist of fatigue/weakness, muscle cramps, skin breakouts/rashes, headaches/dizziness, digestive upset/diarrhea, mucus discharge, body odor, coated tongue, and mood swings/irritability/brain fog.

To minimize cleansing reactions, stop or slow the the targeted therapy and support your body in eliminating the waste. Water enemas, herbal laxatives, saunas, and more water help removal. Optimizing liver function is important too. If you're experiencing these symptoms and want guidance on mitigating them, considering consulting with me.

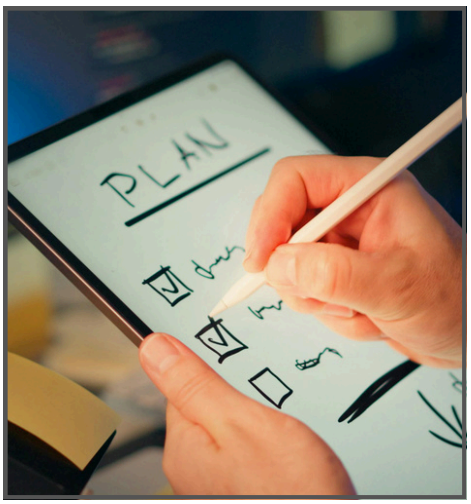

FREE 30-MINUTE WEIGHT LOSS CONSULTATION

This information is only useful when you know how to apply it to your own life.

That's why I'm including a FREE 30-minute introductory consultation with this guide.

On the call, we'll look at your current situation and challenges—and start putting together a personalized plan to help you reach your goals. If you're serious about making a change, this is a great place to start.

BOOK HERE

MY NAME IS AUSTIN HIGGS

Two years after completing my undergraduate degree in mechanical engineering, I switched into healthcare and was on track to become a medical doctor.

I've always been interested in natural health, but had a huge awakening after discovering the work of Dr. Andrew Kaufman and Dr. Tom Cowan. I quickly realized medical school wasn't going to give me the tools I needed to help people improve their health, so I left to pursue natural healing. I studied with Dr. Tom Cowan through his New Biology Curriculum and continue to learn under Dr. Andrew Kaufman's mentorship.

Along the way, I've applied natural healing principles to my own health and have completely healed from autoimmune conditions I was told were chronic and lifelong. Now I aim to help people reverse their own health issues. My goal is to make optimal health simple again by spreading the truth and empowering people to take greater ownership of their health.

RECOMMENDED RESOURCES

- My work: Skool community, Substack, and Youtube
- All of Dr. Andrew Kaufman's work
- Mind control expert Jason Christoff: Website, YouTube